

Safe concentrations for dermal allergens in the environment

James R. Nethercott, M.D.
Brent Finley, PhD
Sue Horowitz, MPH
Dennis Paustenbach, PhD

Recent work studies have examined the relationship between allergen dose per unit of skin surface exposed and the elicitation of response for chromium. The use of such data to arrive at levels in environmental contactants is discussed with reference to soil contaminated with chromium.